

MPENZI

BLACK WOMEN'S INTERNATIONAL FILM & VIDEO FESTIVAL

I LOVE YOU, Director Sabrina Moella
(Canada 2008, 4 min.)

Janice is an independent and organized black woman. Chris is a relaxed and creative black man. Although those two are madly in love with each other, as soon as they decide to move in together, they quickly realize that there is a thin line between love and hate. I Love You (based on the director's own experiences) depicts the silly little conflicts that inevitably occur when two persons start sharing the same space.

SABRINA MOELLA

Sabrina Moella is a Toronto-based filmmaker, writer and producer whose work focuses primarily on the everyday life, traditions, and culture of the Afro-Caribbean Diaspora. She grew up in Paris, graduated in Media Studies from La Sorbonne University and worked as a journalist and TV writer before moving to Toronto. Her films have screened at many festivals across Canada and the US. She is currently working on her new short film, Missing.

